underground

Your monthly guide to what's hot and what's not on the underground melodic rock scene

With a plethora of quality releases at hand, this issue's column is another lush affair, one that is awash with the kind of AOR that's been hand-picked for your delectation. From the obscure to the well-loved and liked, it's all contained in these two pages. An album that will surely be one of the year's finest would have to be Ronny Lee's superb 'Original Retro'. Little is known about Mr Lee, but that will all be rectified by next issue when we deliver the full skinny on your next favourite AOR star. With the news that the mighty Seven have reformed and recorded an album for Escape, it's been, as our American friends would say, another doozy of a month.

Having released their debut album on '08, Finnish AORsters Free Spirit return with a splendid sophomore outing in the shape of 'All The Shades Of Darkened Light'. An eleven-track romp, it will come across like a Def Leppard greatest hits package, such is their similarity. With the likes of Grand Design and Loud Lion doing this kind of thing, and doing it well, it would have to be something special to rival either outfit. And special it is, let me tell you. They've captured the eighties Def Leppard sound to a tee, almost to the point of cloning Sheffield's finest. Like Reckless Love, they've managed to inject the right amount of originality into an old formula and come up with something that although it isn't new, it is damn easy on the ears. They showed an awful lot of promise on their debut, but this trumps it and then some. This is one of the best releases this month, trust me.

Over at Escape they've put together a package that will take some beating this year. The band is Diesel, the album is called 'Into The Fire', and it happens to be one of the best things I've heard this month. Putting Robert Hart together with Jim Kirkpatrick (FM) was a masterstroke, and the end results speak for themselves. With Steve Overland on backing vocals, it's not a million miles away from the recent Overland album, only with more of a blues edge to it. As with FM, Kirkpatrick plays up a storm on this album; he must surely be one of this country's most underrated players? He's injected flair into recent FM material and on this form it's easy to see why. This is British hard rock at its absolute finest. Eat it up, people.

Whatever guise they are under, whether it is Square One or Someone Else's Life, the Aussie melodic rockers The Radio Sun have always delivered quality albums. The core duo of Jason Old (Safire) and Steve Janevski have, from their days in Square One, been right at the heart of things until the present day. In the past they've been renowned for their tight, lush harmonies, and nothing's changed on this album. Entitled 'Wrong Things Right', it's been produced by Paul Laine and will rate highly with lovers of their past works. Just one listen to the likes of 'World's Crazy Now', 'Julie' and the irresistible 'Summer Girl' and you'll be caught – hook, line and sinker. Like their past works, this is the perfect soundtrack to hot summers and lazy released a fabulous five-track EP and there's not a Y&T cover in sight! The opening couplet of 'Run' and 'Caroline' are immense slabs of AOR, both uplifting and surging, that contain a fine balance of guitars and keys, with the latter having an irresistible chorus and hook line. Getting Dan Reed to help out on the balladic 'Peace In Your Heart' will raise their profile, whilst 'Higher Than We Can' is a fantastic end to a great EP.

A nice little reissue of 'Warriors Of Love' by Gideon's Army comes your way this month courtesy of Retroactive Records. Formed in '73, it would be nearly a decade later before they released their debut album in '82. With a further three years until this, their sophomore album, hit the stores, they weren't the most prolific of bands. Originally only ever available on vinyl, 'Warriors Of Love' is very much of its time and, if I'm honest, hasn't aged that well. If you like bands such as Servant, The Rez Band or early Sweet Comfort Band, then you will find plenty to like on this release. This is one for completists or die-hard Christian AOR fans only, I'm afraid.

I had the pleasure of catching up with Jono guitarist, and current six-stringer for Within Temptation, Stefan Helleblad at the recent WT show in Manchester. We discussed all things Jono at the aftershow, with Stefan confirming that the style of their debut will be continued when they record their forthcoming new album. Well, if their new songs are

Whilst Paul Sabu is best remembered for his eighties output, some of his nineties material gets criminally overlooked as a result. An album that best sums up the nineties for Sabu would have to be his recently reissued self-titled album from '96. Hooking up with a couple of ex-Bonfire members – anything to go by, then it'll certainly be business as usual. The likes of 'Can We Make It' would have sat proudly on Queen's 'Innuendo', whilst 'Turn Around' is a piano led ballad that is very reminiscent of Lostalone. If this is the evidence, then album number two will push this band to the forefront.

A double dose of Julian Angel is up next as we peruse, 'Kick Down The Barricades', his latest outing with Beautiful Beast and his contribution to Vitne's 'Neon' album. With Beautiful Beast, Angel wears his heart on his sleeve and unashamedly worships at the altar of all things eighties; it's like Steel Panther only the humour is unintentional. This is their third release and I have to say that they are getting progressively better, but they are hardly going to set the world on fire.

As a member of the Norwegian outfit Seks, the man that is Vitne recorded a dreadful little album and, if I'm honest, 'Neon' isn't that far behind. The pairing of Vitne and Angel is, incredulously, being described in some quarters as a modern day Billy Idol and Stevie Stevens. Whilst Angel is no Stevens, he does know his way around a guitar; Vitne, on the other hand, couldn't carry a tune if it was in a suitcase. A flat vocal delivery is only one part of the problem; couple it with an album full of shambolic songs and you've a recipe for disaster. Avoid, like the plague!

The sweet sounds of Justin Lerner are washing over the New Jersey shoreline via his debut EP, '18th Avenue'. A six-track affair, it showcases Lerner's love of all things Springsteen and Bon Jovi. Not that dissimilar to what Blue Tears were doing on their 'Innocent Ones' album, Lerner has a knack for carrying a great tune. You can imagine him belting these songs out at the Stone Pony or some other legendary New Jersey venue, entrancing the crowd effortlessly with the likes of '18th Avenue', 'Summer Days Ain't Over' and 'Not This Time'. This guy has massive potential and will appeal to fans of Highway 9, Ghost Poets and Blue Tears. Have a look at www.justinlernermusic.com.

One of my most endearing images of LA metal queen Ann Boleyn was that of her on the back cover of Hellion's six track debut EP – flanked by her band, looking like she was holding them back – an image that put her up there with the likes of Lee Aaron and Doro Pesch in my book. With Cherry Red releasing a brand new Anthology, 'To Hellion And Back', it's the perfect time to get reacquainted with this most endearing of metal quintets. Spread over two CDs, this anthology covers all the bases. From the debut EP right up to their present-day incarnation, it's all included here. Personally, I love their debut EP; it show cases a band that should have done so much more.

The Brazilian outfit Pleaser have the kind of style and look that belongs on the sunset strip circa '89. Their debut album, 'One Night In Paradise', is full of the kind of cliché ridden rubbish that destroyed hair metal in the first place. From the cover art to the woeful lyrical content, this is the kind of album that would make Steel Panther sound like Dream Theater. The guitar playing is third division, the vocals are hackneyed and the whole thing just reeks of a poor man's Guns N' Roses.

Do you ever wonder why some bands bother? Surely they reach a point where they go, "Lads, this is shit – let's not bother anymore." Well, do they? In the case of Roxin Palace the answer is a big fat, no, they don't. From their half-overloaded, soul infused AOR was starting to take shape nicely. For many, myself included, this is the jewel in Toto's crown. From the overblown opening of the titular 'Hydra', through to the searing piano drenched master class that is 'White Sister', this album covered all the bases. Throw in the soul saturated balladry of '99' and the hard rock ruckus of 'All Us Boys' and you have a perfect example of this band in all their early glory. A very underappreciated album, one that I would place higher than 'Isolation' and 'The Seventh One', it's time to immerse yourself in one of the seventies' most beguiling albums.

Over at Frontiers the new Winger album, 'Better Day's Comin'', has caught my attention, which, considering they contain two of the rudest men in rock, is no mean feat. Still, it's all about the music, right? And this sounds quite good in my humble opinion. The titular 'Better Day's Comin'' is a particularly pleasant and very seventies inspired song, whilst 'Midnight Driver Of A Love Machine' is just like the Winger of old. Of particular beauty is the track 'Ever Wonder', which sounds like it could have come from any of Kip's solo albums. This is a great album, a real slow-burner that will have a long lasting appeal.

Also on Frontiers is 'Gravitas', the new album from Asia, and its business as usual. If I'm honest, I think that Asia have past their sell-by date and made a huge mistake in getting rid of John Payne. That guy had a certain class and brought excitement to what had become a dull band. Old school fans will take to 'Gravitas' with ease, whilst the rest of us will feel a familiar deja-vu about the whole thing. It's big, grandiose and very, very blandiose.

Over at Rock Candy they've decided to re-release the first three albums from that most revered of AOR outfits, Toto. Despised in the mainstream press, Steve Lukather and company have ridden the storm and stuck two fingers up at their detractors by having a career that spans thirty-five years. In that time they've grabbed Grammy awards, suffered personal tragedies, had number tee and built a career out of delivering down and dirty hard rock to the youth of America.

The Immeasurably talented Alain Conception is the kind of AOR artist that could go quite far. He released an EP awhile back, which was most notable for its Benny Mardones cover, and is just about to release his debut album, 'R'. It's packed full of the kind of AOR that fans of David Saylor will adore. I mean, just check out the album's opener, 'If I'm Losing You', for all the proof you'll need. He does like his covers, as tracks from Journey, Michael McDonald and Luther Vandross will testify, but let's take nothing away from this talented AOR star, as 'R' is a slick, gold-plated album that is rich in talent and has class in abundance. There have been several classy releases from Spain recently; this will sit nicely at the top of the pile.

Austrian melodic rockers Badhoven have been around for quite a few tears in one guise or another. Starting life as Black Rose, they released two rather non-descript CDs before changing their name to Badhoven in '01, when they released 'Behind The Masquerade'. Several albums later and they've arrived at their current opus, 'Obsession'. Whilst I've never been a massive fan of this outfit, I've always admired their spirit and dedication to their cause. If I'm honest, I was expecting very little from this album, but I have to add that it took me totally by surprise. It's certainly their best work by a country mile; it's also quite possibly one of the best AOR CDs to come from an Austrian band. The likes of 'She's So Beautiful', 'My Brothers Red Guitar' and 'Rock You Hard' are prime examples of a band at the top of their game. Have a look at www.badhoven.com.

As we sign off for this month, it just leaves me to tell you not to forget our Facebook page. This month we have the usual playlist, as well as a whole slew of videos from the world of AOR. It's the perfect accompaniment to the pages of AOR Underground. You can check it out at www.facebook.com/Aorunderground.

Here's the playlist. 1. Ronny Lee 'Original Retro' (Well, what a find this little beauty is. I have no idea who Ronny Lee is, but he's made one of the best albums this month.) 2. LaValle 'Dear Sanity' (One of the best hair metal albums you'll hear all year.) 3. Lost Alone 'Shapes Of Screams' (Derby's finest band return with more Queen-like harmonies, all wrapped around twelve seriously catchy songs.) 4. Baby Snakes 'Gunslingers' (A fabulously bombastic sleaze rock album, which ticks all the right boxes.) 5. Raspberry Park 'Scratching The Surface' (Another quality Swedish AOR outfit that are having plaudits heaped on them by the bucket load.) And on that note, I'll see you all back here next month.

Coming next issue: the wonderful Ronny Lee, Kjetil By and LaValle, plus one new acts in the shape of Raspberry Park, Baby Snakes and Art Nation, and reissues from Fiona and Kerry Livgren.
